

We've heard about new public policy that will define the landscape of 2021.

Questions: What are your key take-aways? What requires engagement or action? (Type answer in chat)

There are a lot of new opportunities, but with so much going on, I really need to advocate for what we want. That includes identifying the things in the MPA that we plan to push for at the state and local level.

Policy changes at the state level will require extensive community based planning.

Need engagement re: building more affordable senior housing.

Excited about the opportunity of the expansion of in-lieu of services under CalAIM to address the social determinants of health. Looking at how we can integrate community based organizations providing LTSS services into CalAIM to support independence in the community.

Addressing digital divide

Need to ensure that PACE programs are included as a successful model of integrating care for the whole person and SDOH.

The need to amplify our senior's voice has never been greater in our advocacy efforts.

policy solutions to homelessness require valid input from folks with lived experience, as we create permanent sources of funding for permanent service rich housing subsidies.

There are technology and workflow issues that need to be decided first, it seems, for the work to happen.

Listening and planning session guidelines and date very important to adhere to. This is where things get lost.

when fed emergency funds run out, worried about funding/service cliff. shrinking of services.

Housing and Homeless are inclusive to the planning for ECM and ILOS ILOS has a lot of potential, but we need to ensure equity so that services are offered not just in traditionally service-rich areas.

Including voices from historically disenfranchised communities in the planning processes.

Resources for senior low income homeowners who cannot not maintain their homes and are best serve by aging in place

Housing and also funds to assist folks to say in their homes & apts

There are a lot of community-based organizations in Alameda already addressing some of the needs - bringing them together and setting standards.

Yes, diversity in communities, ethnicity, culture and languages in alameda county.

The many challenges that our Seniors and those dealing with serious health are facing will require Collaboration amongst all of us!
